

THE MAINE FARMER: AN

AUGUSTA:
THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 11, 1858.

BAD BREAD.

Is it not strange, that, when the Almighty has filled the country with the best material in the world for food, viz: excellent wheat and corn, to say nothing of other grains, we should tax our ingenuity to spoil its nutritive powers in every way we can? In the first place, we take away one half of the nutritive powers of wheat by passing it when ground through the finest bolts we can procure, and thus make it fashionable to live on superfine flour, —superfine starch it should be called. We believe it is benevolent to wish that every fine bolt in the world were burnt to ashes, never to be restored again.

In the next place, after we have obtained the superfine starch, we ruin what there is whole-some about it by filling it with various mineral matters, such as saleratus, cream of tartar, lime, alum, &c. Now, why not use the food prepared for us by nature, with all necessary ingredients for our sustenance, without robbing and poisoning it in every ingenious way we can?

Good nutritious bread is what we all need, but it is more necessary for children who are growing and demand the purest of materials than for adults.

The following result of bad bread for children, we copy from a medical Journal, (The College Journal of Medical Science,) and we call the attention of parents to it.

RICKETS—CAUSED BY BAD BREAD. In a recent paper, Dr. Snow says that he has observed that rickets is a very common disease among the children of those who use baker's bread; he considers it to be the disease with which such bread is almost adulterated.

Now, we are in full accordance with the well known chemical action of alum, that it has a decomposing power, and that it is decomposed by the phosphoric acid which should unite with lime to form the base, which combinations are but little tenacious but are decomposable by any of the alkalies or acids that are in the system.

CITY ELECTION.

Our annual election passed off yesterday, (Monday,) very quietly. The Republicans elected their candidates, throughout, with one or two exceptions. The candidates for Mayor were Hon. James W. North, re-nominated, and Al Staples, Esq. The vote in the several wards was as follows:—

Ward.	North.	Staples.
1	129	49
2	99	45
3	132	23
4	71	50
5	53	13
6	69	6
7	70	5
Total,	617	199

Majority for North, 418.

The vote for Judge of the Municipal Court was nearly the same as that for Mayor, and resulted in the election of Samuel Titcomb, Esq., the present incumbent. The opposing candidate was Elias Craig, Esq.

At the time of going to press we have been unable to obtain a list of the ward officers elected.

The first meeting of the new City Council will be held on Monday next. We shall endeavor to lay the Mayor's Address before our readers, next week.

FIRE IN BIDDEFORD. An account of the destructive fire in Biddeford, last week, will be found in another column. The principal sufferer seems to be our friend, the publisher of the Journal and Union, Louis C. Cowen, Esq., who not only lost his office, type, presses, &c., but all his books and accounts. His entire loss he estimates at $5000, besides notes and accounts to the amount of $2000 and upwards, while his insurance is only $2000. Mr. C. is peculiarly unfortunate, this being the third time he has been burned out. He has our hearty sympathy, and best wishes for a speedy recovery from his losses.

On the night after the above fire, the house of Marcus Watson, publisher of the Gazette, was burnt. The fire was discovered in the barn, which, with the house, was entirely consumed. The furniture was mostly saved. It is thought the fire was set by an incendiary. This is the second time Mr. W. has been burnt out within two years. His loss at this time is about $1700. The barn was insured for $200 in the Saco Mutual, and the house for $675 in the Lowell Traders and Mechanics Ins. Co.

PASSING WORTHLESS MONEY. Two men, passing under the names of Capt. Goo. C. Carleton and Marsh P. Carleton, of West Boxford, Mass., were arrested at St. Danvers, on the 27th ult., charged with passing worthless bills on the Metropolitan Bank, of Georgetown, D. C. On the person of the first were found seven dollars in one's, two's and three's on the Metropolitan Bank, and two's on the Shipbuilders' Bank of Rockland, Me. About twelve dollars in bills and silver, good money, were also found upon him together with a number of letters. From the other party there were taken three cents, two cents, $32 in two's and three's on the Metropolitan Bank, four's on the failed Bank of Milford, Delaware, one dollar bill (bad) on the Freeman's Bank, Augusta, Me., and about $16 in bills and coin supposed to be good. In default of bail in $800 they were committed for examination.

LARCENY. On Wednesday last, the room of Mr. Henry S. Osgood, at the Stanley House, was entered and the sum of $14 taken from his pocket-book, which was then thrown into the street, where it was afterwards found. Suspicion fell upon a boy by the name of Edward Brainard, who has been employed about the house for a few weeks, and a close watch was kept upon his movements. On Monday evening, he attended the dramatic performances at Winthrop Hall, and offered a ten dollar bill to be one of the bills taken from Mr. Osgood's pocket-book. He was arrested and will have his examination this Tuesday, afternoon.

INVITATION EXTENDED. We learn that the Winthrop Church (Congregational,) of Charles Town, Mass., have extended an invitation to Rev. E. B. Webb, of this city, to settle over that church. Mr. Webb has heretofore refused similar invitations, and his society, by whom he is highly respected, will doubtless prevail upon him to remain where he is already accomplishing much good.

TRANSPORTATION. By an error in paging the manuscript, the concluding portion of the first number of the review of Mr. Goodale's report appears as the conclusion of the second number, on the first page of this week's paper. If the reader will begin at the paragraph commencing "And its virtue is not only," read the first part of this week's article, he will have it all in its proper order.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

ENGLISH GRAMMAR. The English Language in its elements and forms. With a history of its origin and development. Designed for general use in families and schools. By Wm. C. Fowler, New York: Harper & Bros.; Boston: A. Williams & Co.

We regard this work as the most complete and systematically arranged work on the English language, for common use, that we have yet examined. It is an abridgment of the author's large work on the same subject, intended to bring it into a suitable compass for a school book.

During the past few years our text books for schools have received many important additions. Great improvements have been made in the art of teaching;—among which we are inclined to consider the use of new and improved school books as not the least in importance. We are far from advocating frequent changes in text books. We know the tax it imposes upon parents, to say nothing of the difficulty of overcoming habit, and preferences for long established works, but when any real improvement has been made, one that will outweigh any merely pecuniary objections, we are in favor of its adoption. The importance of the study of the English language is apt to be overlooked by our teachers, as well as by parents. Many scholars may be found studying Latin and Greek, who would make very creditable appearance, if questioned with regard to their own language. This, we think, should be different. No scholar, had we the charge of a school, should commence the study of the language, until he had a good ground work of English grammar to start upon. Then the two languages would mutually explain one another, and the progress of the pupil would be rapid and thorough. This opinion, we trust, will be generally received.

Another naval hero, whose name is dear to Rhode Island, has passed away. Commodore Matthew C. Perry, the first successful negotiator of the Treaty of Amity and Commerce with Japan, who died yesterday at New York, was a man of great energy and ability, and was highly popular, and the volume before us contains some of the best of him. The Legislature of his native State did honor to itself as well as to this distinguished naval commander, by awarding him not only thanks, but an elegant and well-deserved token of their high appreciation of his important services.
